Nouns | 5th Declension & Superlatives

31A. GRAMMAR

Ah, 5th Declension nouns.... These guys are great! First of all, there aren't many of them. Nonetheless, those few fifth declension nouns do show up often. Nothing new to learn here but new endings. By now the terms nominative, genitive, dative, and so on don't even bug you anymore. You know how Latin nouns behave. Here are the new endings:

Fifth Declension
	the endings		dies - day
	Singular	Plural	Singular	Plural
Nominative	es	es	dies	dies
Genitive	ei	erum	diei	dierum
Dative	ei	ebus	diei	diebus
Accusative	em	es	diem	dies
Ablative	e	ebus	die	diebus

Fifth Declension nouns
5th declension noun	Definition	Derivatives
dies, diei	day	diary
facies, faciei	face, shape	facial fides, fidei	faith, trust	Fido
glacies, glaciei	ice	glacier
res, rei	thing	republic
spes, spei	hope	despair
series, serei	series, row	serial
species, speciei	kind, type	species, special

Most 5th declension words are feminine. Dies may be the only exception. It is masculine. From dies, Latin creates several adverbs:

Hodie	today
Perendie	the day after tomorrow
Cotidie	daily, every day

LESSON 31

Nouns | 5th Declension & Superlatives

You now know all 5 declensions in Latin!

1st Declension

insula, insulae

2nd Declension

fluvius, fluvii

3rd Declension

oppidum, oppidi

4th Declension

manus, manui

5th Declension

dies, diei

Superlative Adjectives - These adjectives were mentioned in the last lesson. You know how to use them in English. Remember?

His rock is big.

Her rock is bigger.

My rock, however, is biggest.

In Latin, superlatives follow the same rules as 1st and 2nd declension adjectives. They end in - us, a, um. Before adding those endings, though, Latin adds -is-sim, or - rim, or -lim.

highest - altissimus, a, um coldest - frigidissimus, a, um hottest - calidissimus, a, um prettiest - pulcherrimus, a, um

Sancho Panza called Don Quixote - Quixottissimus. Maybe not the best Latin, but it did show that Sancho attempted to pay attention in class.

Adjectives ending in -er in the nominative singular form the superlative by adding -rimus, a, um

prettiest - pulcherrimus, a, um
sharp - acerrimus, a, um

Adjectives ending in -lis in the nominative singular end in -limus, a, um..

easiest - facillimus, a, um hardest - dificillimus, a, um

Some superlatives just don't play by the rules. In English, it is improper to say "sour, sourer, sourest". We add more, or most.

The taste of a cranberry is sour.
The taste of a lemon is more sour.
The face of an angry headmaster is most sour.

Nouns | 5th Declension & Superlatives

Latin does this with certain adjectives. Idoneus means suitable. In English, we do not say suitable, suitabler, suitablest. Instead, we use suitable, more suitable, most suitable.

We added extra words in English to form the comparative and superlative. We add extra words in Latin too. Magis means more, and maxime means most.

idoneus	- suitable
magis idoneus	- more suitable
maxime idoneus	- most suitable
aureus	- golden
magis aureus	- more golden
maxime aureus	- most golden

Here is the word puella declined with a superlative adjective.

Singular

nom	puella bellissima	the most beautiful girl
gen	puellae bellissimae	of the most beautiful girl
dat	puellae bellissimae	to the most beautiful girl
acc	puellam bellissimam	the most beautiful girl
abl	puellae bellissimae	by/with/from the most beautiful girl

Plural

nom	puellae bellissimae	the most beautiful girls
gen	puellarum bellissimarum	of the most beautiful girls
dat	puellis bellissimis	to the most beautiful girls
acc	puellas bellissimas	the most beautiful girls
abl	puellis bellissimis	by/with/from the most beautiful girls

Here word equus declines with the same word. Now the endings are masculine.

Singular

nom	equus bellissimus	the most beautiful horse
gen	equi bellissimi	of the most beautiful horse
dat	equo bellissimo	to the most beautiful horse
acc	equum bellissimum	the most beautiful horse
abl	equo bellissimo	by/with/from the most beautiful horse
